

For some, digital is about technology or redesigning the company website. For others, digital is a new way of engaging with customers or an entirely new way of doing business.

We believe that digital is less about a thing and more a way of doing things. It's a behavior and part of our client's organizational DNA. We think about digital as investments in change:

- Changes in how an organization interacts with its customers, partners or employees
- Changes in end-to-end business process and automation
- Changes in how we use data insights to develop smarter products and personalized services
- Changes in how Marketing and IT work together to develop new systems of engagement which are powered by mobile and sensor technologies

We had cross department discussions that we've never had before. We thought we had our business strategy pretty much figured out, but the digital strategy helped us flush out things that we hadn't ever thought of.

Working with CENTRIC

The keys to a winning digital strategy are aligning the digital strategy with the business strategy and objectives, then prioritizing the right combination of Process, Technology and Organizational imperatives.

Our approach to Digital

We are not an agency. We believe digital transformation requires broader capabilities and different engagement model.

Having a business strategy for the digital world requires more than campaigns and redesigning the company website.

This is what guides our thinking throughout each project:

- New experiences powered by technology
- Transforming marketing and IT operations
- Delivering agility at scale

We call it the Digital Playbook

Digital Initiatives Require Broad Capabilities

We spent years updating our back-office systems, but we have a wall between the company and our customers. We know how to price a customer, but not who they are or what they like.
